VENETIAN SUNSET

A locally developed hibiscus was adopted as the Venice official flower by the City Council at its regular meeting recently.

The red-gold flower was developed by R. E. "Red" Draggoo, Trout Lane, Nokomis, and has been christened the "Venetian Sunset." The name was apparently a reference to the magnificently - colored skies that crowds of spectators regularly throng to the public beach to see at sundown most of the year.

A car dealer was having trouble collecting past due installments so he wrote the customer, "What would your neighbors think if I repossessed the car?"

Two weeks later he received this reply, "All the neighbors think it would be a lousy trick."
